

SYNOPSIS

Turkey - Self-Confident Women

Türkei - Die selbstbewussten Frauen

Although politics remains men's business in Turkey, more and more women determine the fate of that country. Nowhere in Europe do so many women head multinational companies, run university departments and clinics and shape public debate as journalists and writers. On the other hand, there are millions of Turkish women who have no chance of education or a profession. One fifth cannot read and write. Despite strict laws, extreme acts of domestic violence and so-called «honour killings» of young girls are still the order of the day and covered by almost inviolable traditions. Christian Schüller has accompanied four strong women and shows how each in her own way attempts to break out of existing stereotypes. What unites them in spite of ideological differences and contradictions is the conviction: «Women change Turkey!»
