

SYNOPSIS

Interfaces - Our Digital Life

Das digitale Ich - Computer, Menschen, Emotionen

Hardly anything in the world works without a PC any more. Practically, everything is controlled by computer - with networks, communication, sending and receiving all digital. Our world is an analogue world that is increasingly being dominated by binary processes and programmes. This digital omnipresence has co-opted us and is continuing to grow in strength; it won't be long, for example, until household technology can only be controlled digitally, and even remotely, or until 2018 when the first self-driving vehicles hit the roads in California.

How much "digital" does humankind need? And how much "human" does digital need? This documentary illuminates digital environments and descriptively tells its story using four different generations - ranging from the generation that was not born into the telepathic society through to Generation Vipe.

Year: 2013

Run-Time: 1 x 52 min.

Directed by Hannes M. Schalle

A co-production by ORF/3sat and Moonlake Entertainment

Available worldwide

Languages: German (ORIGINAL) , English (VOICE-OVER)

Format: 16:9

HD

» SCREEN ONLINE