

SYNOPSIS

The Treasure of Books

Im Olymp der Bücher

In his film, director Martin Ambrosch delves into a historical mystery story: In 1665, a shipload full of invaluable illuminated scripts departed from the Tyrolian castle of Ambras heading for Vienna, where the consignment - the library that Ferdinand II had set up - was to be accepted by Emperor Leopold I. However, part of the books had disappeared, ships foundered. Centuries later, many a piece of value would resurface, water-stained, on antique markets. This film unveils the secrets that modern book research has brought to light.

Year: 2005

Run-Time: 1 x 50 min.

Directed by Martin Ambrosch

ORF

Languages: German (ORIGINAL) , French (DUBBED)

Format: 16:9

» SCREEN ONLINE