The Desert Nomads of Afar

Die Wüstennomaden von Afar

Valerie Browning knows what it means to live in one of the most inhospitable and impoverished regions in the world. The 60-year-old is at home in the Afar region of Ethiopia - and that's the hottest desert in the world. Mile-long hikes in 50° heat are part of her everyday life. The Carinthian Erfried Malle has worked in the region for years with his aid organisation «SONNE international» (Support Organisation for Non-formal Needed Education), working closely with Valerie Browning's organisation APDA (Afar Pastoralist Development Association). Their projects cover a wide spread: They dig water reservoirs, purposefully replenish livestock after droughts and train health workers, who carry out vaccination campaigns or assist at births.
