

SYNOPSIS

Sharp as a Tack, Well-Educated, Assistant

Blitzgescheit, gut ausgebildet, Assistentin

Why are there so few women at the very top of the artistic and cultural world? Are women less good? Why then do they tend to score above average in relevant studies? Are women too modest, too considerate, too self-critical - or do they wimp out when it comes to the crunch? "Sharp as a Tack, Well-Educated, Assistant" examines the situation of women working in the artistic and cultural spheres and analyses them together with women working in the theatre, female film directors and cultural workers, with their male colleagues and with a female television director.
